History

Richard the III was a British Monarch who ruled from 6th July 1483 until his death on the 22nd of August 1485 at the Bosworth Battlefield, Leicestershire.

Richard III, who was only king for 2 years, died in battle fighting against Henry Tudor at the Battle of Bosworth. His body was quickly buried -likely, due to dying at war- and the rival Henry Tudor took over the crown.

It was a battle fought on 22nd August 1485 between the Yorkist King Richard III and the Lancastrian Henry Tudor, who wanted to become king. It ended in the defeat and death of Richard the Third.

Historians knew that Richard was buried at the Friary Church at the time of his death and had an idea as to where the location was buried in Leicester- underneath the car park.

In 2012, archaeologists and researchers discovered the skeleton remains of Richard III. They were found in a grave under a parking lot in Leicester, which used to be the site of the Leicester Cathedral.

He is significant to Leicester as he was the last English king to have been killed in battle and his grave had been lost for over 500 years. It is very uncommon for a king to be unearthed, so this gave Leicester great publicity to tourists.
